THE TARIFF BILL.

As a rule, business-men take little note of the proceedings of Congress, but they should be interested in the fact that the Dingley tariff bill passed the House of Representatives yesterday. It went through in the same form, substantially, as that in which it came from the Ways and Means Committee. Only such amendments were adopted by the House as were recommended by the committee; all others falled, no matter whether they were proposed by Republicans or Democrats.

One of these amendments provides that the bill shall go into effect to-day, April words, it aims to be retroactive; but this as well hide their diminished heads, is mere buncombe, and is intended only to frighten the importers who are en gaged in filling up their warehouses with foreign goods in anticipation of higher duties than prevail at present. This amendment may hold as to goods caught in the bonded warehouses after the law has become operative, but that the government can follow up goods We, therefore, regard this provision as a mere threat intended to intimidate im-

As passed, the Dingley bill embraces 20 per cent, more articles than the 'old McKinley bill did, while the duties imposed average 7 per cent, higher.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where it will be promptly referred to the Finance Committee of that body. But, as a matter of fact, the committee has already had the measure under conside ration informally. With a copy of the House bill in hand, it has been going over the various schedules and has been noting the objections of members.

Republican and Democratic authorities alike agree that the Dingley bill will be pulled to pieces in the Senate. In the House the Dingley-Hanna influence was all powerful. Little attention was given to the people's interests; the sole aim seems to have been to satisfy those manfacturers who placed the Republican party under obligations to them during the last campaign. Thus, without a request from anybody-that is, without any request publicly made-the committee increased the rates upon numerous articles of foreign manufacture that come into competition with American monopolies.

So excessively outrageous are many of the duties named in the House bill that numerous New England and New York Republican papers have solemnly warned Mr. Dingley that he has been making a mistake-has been setting his coulter too deep. The Mugwump press also is very vehement in denouncing the Dingley bill. They would have the public believe they never expected anything like this from the McKinley administration. But we must say for McKinley that he did not gain the Mugwumpian votes upon false pretences. In every one of the many speeches that he made at Canton, he said, in substance, "The tariff's the thing." He harped upon the tariff continually. He fet all the world know that lant's objection, as to the character for a high tariff would be the chief object truth and veracity of one of the witnesses of his administration. And so the Mugwumps have no sort of right to be either surprised or angered at the outcome of the McKinley victory.

But in the Senate the Republican majority is so narrow and so uncertain, the party bosses cannot possibly push the bill through as they have done in the House. They will be compelled to hear argument-which they would not do in the House-and it is confidently expected that the bill will be completely re-seems to be that the Senate will make so many changes in the bill that Mr. Dingley himself will scarcely recognize it when it leaves the Senate, Our exdriblets only, and it is well understood that he is going to stand by him. Already he McKinley is giving out appointments in has sent away from the White House personal friends of his, with the information tion that he could not consider their applications until these were endorsed by the applicants' Senators. In this The DAILY DISPATCH is delivered to way he will be able to exercise powerful subscribers at FIFTEEN CENTS per influence, Still, we may confidently count week, payable to the carrier weekly, upon great changes being made in the bill by the Senate. In the end the bill Court in its decision in the Trans-Miswill go to a committee of conference, and we may presume that after mutual concessions it will pass.

We say we presume, because it is a thing almost too horrible to think of that the two houses may so disagree bill impossible at this session! So long have our people been troubled have the country continue upset until the Republicans strengthen their forces in the Senate.

From the best information accessible to us, we conclude that if the bill becomes a law by the 1st of July, it will hody desires to make at least one speech upon the tariff.

May Heaven send the country a safe deliverance from Congress,

ALLEGED NEW POWER.

On Saturday, in New York, while a number of scientists were examining a new chemical compound which was being exhibited in a tumbler, the object of their investigation "went off," and several of the party had their personal pulchritude spoiled by flying pieces of glass. The Gressed to THE DISPATCH COMPANY. Herald, of Monday, in its account of the accident, stated that the compound was a new and powerful freezing mixture intended to preserve meats, etc. In its issue of yesterday, however, the Herald corrects this statement, and in so doing makes a revelation which is "important, Tripler, claims will take the place of steam, produce energy at a minimum cost, and revolutionize transportation and manufacturing.

Liquified air has been produced in small Professor Linds, of Munich, has, it is stated, discovered a cheap process of making it. But Mr. Tribler is the first, as we understand it, to claim that he power. A Herald reporter visited Mr. Tribler's laboratory in New York, where he has been experimenting with the power for a number of years, and saw one of the experimenter's machines there. According to the reporter's story, the new power is transmitted through an engine just as the power generated by steam from boiling water is transmitted, and Mr. Tribler declares that "his liquified air in boiling, or changing to vapor again, absorbs the heat in the surrounding air so rapidly that it in turn is liquified, and flows into the reservoir, which in this manner is always kept suppliedthat is to say, once the apparatus is charged with a supply of liquified air it feeds itself, and will practically run forever without any cost for fuel." The discoverer also affirms that there is no loss of power in the process, and that a pressure of 2,000 pounds to the square inch may be obtained at practically no cost.

Scientific men whom the Herald reporter interviewed touching the practicability of Mr. Tribler's claims were in- letes. clined to be sceptical, but unless their 1st, though it may not become a law scepticism is well founded, the disci-for several months yet! Then our Springfield contemare in private hands, we do not believe. porary confesses to a conviction that the North is not, by any means, a promised land for the negro, and also antagonizes the proposition of those negrophile census experts who claim a rapid increase in the negro population. "The pitiless march," says the Republican, "of northern and western civilizations leaves little hope for the negro in their midst; and his comparatively slow rate of natural increase even in the most favorable elimatic sections exhibits a situation and a tendency which even the humanitarian is powerless to overcome." Gradually, the North is beginning to understand the negro, and to appreciate the fact that he can never, in any way, or under any conditions, become the competitor of the Caucasian, Other things the North is beginning to understand are that the best friend of the negro is the southern white man, and that whatever dormant capabilities there are in the race can be developed only by the former slaveholders and their children, who have a consideration for the negro not accorded him at the North. Except, indirectly, as does the Republican in its reference to "the pitlless march of northern and western civilizations," our northern friends are slow to admit that this light is breaking upon them, but we look for the admission on terms and direct, in time.

> The Supreme Court of Mississippi has decided that a juryman may be a witness as well, at one and the same time. This decision is found in 73d Mississippi Reports, page 50. It was in the case of Bob. White vs. the State. It follows: A juror may be a witness for either party before himself and his fellows and still retain his seat as a juror. FORAKER'S POOLING BILL. merce law, introduced in the Senate Tuesday by Senator Foraker, is largely a counterpart of the Patterson pooling bill that was before Congress last year, and is intended to meet the objection to railroad pooling raised by the Supreme sour! Freight Association case.

The bill permits pooling, and its salient feature is that it gives the Interstate Commerce Commission stringent control over all agreements for pooling, and over the rates included in these agreements. as to make the passage of any tariff Twenty days are allowed the commission in which to examine any contract or agreement, and it is required to disapwith tariff agitation they would prefer prove the same when it is convinced that that a bed bill should pass rather than the operation of the contract would "resust in unreasonable rates, unjust discrimination, insufficient service to the public, or otherwise contravene any of the provisions" of the Interstate Commerce act. In case of such disapproval the contract becomes void. The commission is also authorized and required to investigate rigidly and continuously the working of all pooling agreements, and at any time when in its judgment the above results are realized, to disapprove and condemn any discriminating agreement, and to make it inoperative within a fixed time. In such cases, however, right is given the tailroads to appeal to the United States courts.

When the decision was rendered in the Trans-Missouri Freight Association case it was suggested even by papers not particularly friendly to the rallways that some such legislation as is proposed in the Foraker bill was necessary-first in order to protect the investors in railway securities, and secondly in order to hold the balances evenly between the railway

Unfortunately, however, in coming down quantifies in scientific laboratories, and from romance to fact, the papers find that the suffering and death on board the Cakes were due to the captain's unmitigated stinginess and meanness. The Captain is now under arrest, and if the has adapted it commercially as a great half that is asserted regarding his cruelty to and neglect of his men is true, it's a plty he cannot be subjected to a taste of the cat-o'-nine tails well laid on.

The Providence (R. L.) Journal speaks words of soberness and truth when it says that "the farmers are just as much entitled to government aid as any other class-perhaps more so." And it also speaks words of soberness and truth when it adds that the "farmers did not get a cent of benefit out of the agricultural schedules of the McKinley law and they will fare no better under the heavy duties on their products that the Dingley bill proposes."

Candidacy of Major Lee.

Hampton, Va. To the Editor of the Dispatch:

Please publish the enclosed com tion, and oblige, yours truly,

E. E. MONTAGUE. Hampton, Va., March 20, 1897. The friends of the Hon. Baker P. Lee take this means of announcing his candidacy before the next Democratic Stat Convention for Governor, Judge Lee who is in the very vigor of manhood, i ripe in experience in State affairs. In deed, he has been so closely identifie with the adairs of the State for the las twenty years or more that he has be come a part of the history of the Demo cratic party in Virginia; so much so, it fact, that his friends who make this an nouncement of his candidacy deem it un necessary to introduce him to the people of this old Commonwealth. The record of his public life as lawyer, soldier, an statesman is familiar both to the middle aged and the young men of Virginia

That record has won him distinction among the Old Dominion's sons. It has been fittingly said of Baker Lee, that whatever in the service of his State or his party he has been called upon to do has been well and gracefully done As a Democrat, his loyalty to his party and the people's interests has been the guiding principle of his public life. While his influence has always been given to the side of liberality and conservatism-a fact which has not always commend a fact which has not always commended him to partisan favor—he has always been uncompromising in defence of Jeffersonian principles. And he has won the respect of political foes, as well as the confidence of political friends. As an elector and canvasser, he has had few equals and no superior. With his pen, too, he has been powerful in advocating the cause of Democracy. A ploneer in behalf of bimetallism, Major Lee espoused the cause of free silver when poused the cause of free silver when its friends were few; became its cham-pion while yet the issue was a mere vague whisper in the politics of Vir-ginia, and from that day to this his voice and pen have been steadily and boldly given to its defence.

Major Lee is a bold and candid De-mocrat, who never waits for the coming current of public opinion, but takes his stand early and openly on every new issue that presents itself. And he is an firm in holding his views as he is prompt and fearless in expressing them. His great foresight in public affairs stamps him as having exceptional capa-city for party leadership. It has been many, many years since any Tidewater Virginian has been honored with the governorship of our State. In view of all these facts, and of the very importent fact that dissensions have disturbed, and still disturb, the Democratic party in Virginia, and believing that Baker
